

Seven-year-old Kacie Frith makes a surprising donation to Rainbow for Japan Kids

What would make a seven-year-old girl give up her birthday gifts? Love and compassion for others. Kacie Frith, a student at Iolani School, was getting ready to celebrate her seven-year birthday. She spoke with her mother and asked that in lieu of presents for her birthday this year, she would like those who attend her birthday party to donate money to the JASH-sponsored Rainbow for Japan Kids that helps children who were victims of the tragic earthquake and tsunami that struck Japan. The donations came to $450 which she delivered to JASH.

Kacie also teamed with her sister to make greeting cards for each of the 20 Rainbow for Japan Kids who came to Hawaii on July 27th. These cards will be given to each student.

We wish Kacie not only a happy birthday, but pass our deep appreciation for being so considerate of others who were affected by a tragic event.
